To be a human with emotions

To live your days while you are feeling

To look at life as it is running

To have the courage to keep on living

To know that all that you have done

Was not just wasting all your time

The deeds and all that you have said

Are meaningful to one who maybe is perplexed

The meaning of this long lived life

The days are passing, but so hard

I cannot phantom how I’ll live

My whole existence just like this